Subject: Cropping and docking

To Whom it may Concern --- I wish to address cropping and docking --- Concerning docking --- I've been a CKC member for 30 years (Retrievers and Pointers are my interest) --- In some hunting breeds, docking is necessary for the dog's safety --- excitement of the hunt causes a wiping action with the tail – that will eventually cause bleeding – along with the bleeding you now have an on set of flies etc. harming the dog – Medical attention becomes necessary --- I will suggest – docking is no more harmful than having the foreskin removed on a male child and that becomes objectionable too --- I would hope the legislature will take a second look with concerns of real dog breeders and fanciers and not be lead astray with shallow opinion. --- Under Veterinarian care a professional outcome is the positive result. ----- Respectfully , Joe Isley Leamington ON.
