To whom: Nova Scotia is a small, well populated province that has rainfall well above the dry necessity for uranium mining (which is not in short supply in Canada) and a well dispersed population that would definitely be negatively affected by any exploration or mining of uranium. We went through this before. Please don't do this to us again. Please leave our uranium dragon alone. The ban should remain.
We should concentrate on using wind , not to used elsewhere (i.e. EverWind), but for our OWN local usage.

Thank you for your attention
